The Evolving Self Robert Kegan 2009-08-02 The Evolving Self focuses upon the most basic and universal psychological problem—the individual's effort to make sense of self. Robert Kegan shows that self is not a fixed essence, a product of nature, or an illusion, but an ever-changing activity, an agent of creation in its own right. Through an evocative narrative of a young woman's struggle to come to terms with the death of her husband, the book explores the complex and contradictory nature of human development. It highlights the importance of understanding the dynamics of change and the challenge of finding the right balance between the old and the new in our lives.

Immunity to Change Robert Kegan and Lisa Lahey 2009-08-02 Immunity to Change shows in practical terms how to unravel the knots that prevent people from making the changes that are important to them. Written by two adult-developmental psychologists, this book offers a rang of different perspectives on the nature of human development and provides a range of tools that can help people to go beyond the limits of their current stage of development.

The book offers a systematic and innovative analysis of his theories and of the ethnomethodological movement which he has inspired. It is the only full-length study focused on the writings of Harold Garfinkel and will be essential reading for all those concerned with understanding and evaluating one of the most radically original social scientists of recent times.

Shaping Psychology

Tomasz Witkowski 2020-11-03

Shaping Psychology is a unique collection of in-depth conversations with a selection of the most influential psychologists working today, conducted at the end of a decade that shook psychological science. They provide insights into the controversies at the heart of contemporary psychology, revealing a clash of visions of what psychological science is all about and where it is headed. They are candid on the crisis in psychology and explore its causes, consequences and how to overcome it. They also discuss challenges in the field from researchers and the requirements that changed their worldview.

Those interviewed include pioneers who have shaped psychology as we know it today and who represent a wide range of specializations, from research to mental health practice, mainstream psychology to critical psychology and neuroscience to the Open Science movement. Elizabeth F. Loftus, Stanford University, USA; Jerome Kagan, Harvard University, USA; Michael I. Posner, University of Oregon, USA; Scott O. Lilienfeld, Emory University, USA; Robert J. Sternberg, Cornell University, USA; Robert Plomin, King's College London, UK; Joseph L. LeDoux, New York University, USA; Susan Blackmore, University of Plymouth, UK; Noam Chomsky, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, USA; and many others.

Reinventing Organizations

Frederic Laloux 2014

Every time humanity has shifted to a new stage of consciousness in the past, it has invented a new way to structure and run organizations, each time bringing breakthroughs to capitalism. The organizations researched for this book have already “cracked the code.” They have been able to make up entirely new organizational methods. This book describes in practical detail how these organizations have done it and could one day operate in the new paradigm.
